

PCMG Weekly Digest

Dear Master Gardener,

I hope you have all had wonderful week. As the seasons change and the weather warms up, it seems like the office is buzzing with activity. Since we are moving into our busy season my parents came up for a visit last week to spend time with me before things get too hectic. It was a wonderful visit. We got to check out some new restaurants as well as a few new museums. Its important to remember as we get busier to still take time to step back and relax.

Mark your calendars for the exciting plant sales coming up: the Pathfinder event in Jacksonville on April 10th and 11th, followed by the Little Rock Greenhouse on the 17th and 18th. These events are not just about beautiful plants; they are vital for our funding, so let's rally together, spread the word, and show our support!

Additionally, don't forget to check out the plethora of upcoming talks, trainings, and trips highlighted in this week's digest. It's a fantastic chance to learn and connect, so be sure to scroll all the way down and see what piques your interest!

Happy Gardening,
Derek Reed
