

PCMG Weekly Digest

Hays Senior Center PCMG members handing out Mosquito Buckets!

Dear Master Gardener,

I can't believe June is almost over! This month has been incredibly busy. I think I have only been in the office 3 days for the entire month! While we didn't get much rain this past week it has at least been on the cooler side but it looks like that is changing next week so let's brace for the heat!

New master gardener applications are due in one month! If you have any friends, family, or coworkers who might be interested, be sure to get them to apply as soon as possible!

If you are a first-year master gardener or a mentor, please keep an eye out for a text or email from Jan Brandeburg. She will be reaching out to get a headcount for our Annuals to Perennials watch party in July.

Be sure to scroll down and check out all the events. We've got several new and exciting opportunities and trips coming up!

Happy Gardening,
Derek Reed

It's the start of a new year! If you are in need of extra hours check out upcoming volunteer opportunities.

PCMG Native Seed Project

Restoring pollinator habitat in landscapes with locally sourced native seed

Please consider collecting seeds from any Arkansas native plants at your projects to share with the PCMG native seed project. We will sort and store each species appropriately to preserve viability. We distribute them to PCMG and community projects during the optimal time for planting to promote germination.

Together, we can support our local wildlife and restore biohabitat. Please contact Ruth Landers
